LITERARY INTELLIGENCE. The great Catalogue of the British Museum Library now in progress, has just received the important addition of two more letters, G. and H,-the former consisting of 88, the latter of 37 folio velumes. The Athenaum that says at the present rate the public may hope in ten years to see the completion of the great catalogue in 2,000 folio volumes!

An English naturalist has published a Manual of Entomology in verse, after the peculiar style of Longfellow's Hiawatha. Here is the poet's description of a very unpoetical

Next in order the cockroaches, Swarming in our cockney kitchens In the cupboard, in the pantry, In the bread-pan, in the meat-safe, Every kind of food devouring, Every kind of food defiling, And most disagreeably smelling. Greedy gluttons, eating all things, Hiding always in the daytime, Hating daylight, hating sunshine, Up and eating in the night time. Their antennæ long and tapering, Long and thin and very thread-like, Very very many-jointed. Head bent down beneath the thorax, Four wings large and tough and leathery, Folding over one another, Folding over both the hind wings; These are folded, too, beneath them, And all lying on the body; Their legs all alike and simple, Formed for running, not for leaping, And their feet are all five-jointed, Such are cockroaches Blattina.

Under the head of 'Romance of a Portrait,' the London Athenseum publishes a statement which seems to show conclusively that the famous portrait of Addison at Holland House which has been copied and engraved time and again, and has been mentioned as authentic by Macaulay, is in fact not a portrait of Addison, but a portrait of Sir Andrew Fountaine, of Narford Hall, in Norfolk, vicechamberlain to Queen Caroline, and the successor of Sir Isaac Newton in the warden- Tickets $15-Halves $7 50-Quarters $3.75 ship of the mint.

Madame Ida Pfeiffer is on her return home. She sailed from the Mauritius on the 11th of March and is expected in London on the second week in June. She has fully recovered from her Madagascar fever, (taken as is probable in consequence of the harshness with which she was so capriciously expelled from that island by the Queen) and is preparing her account of its wonders, with a description of the Mauritius.

When Madame P. embarked in 1856, or this her fourth voyage, she announced it would be her last, as her age was then 59.

NAMES OF COLORS.

A Bright Salesman .- The vocabulary of colors is always progressive, though not always increasing. New names are perpetu-ally introduced; but their old ones are perpetually dropped, so that the aggregate is maintained nearly in equilibrio.

A novelty in this line was lately introduced at a fashionable shop, not, however, by the shop-keeper, but by his customer. A lady, with great exquisiteness of manner, asked for dress silk-"not gray, nor a lead color, but a subdued mouse!" The smart young man behind the counter expressed his regret that "that shade of color had not yet been introduced in the French studios, but he informed the lady that he could show her the next best thing, which was enraged rat!"

"The lady, not taking, or not relishing the wit of the unlucky clerk, immediately re ported him to his employer as "an impudent whereupon the employer, as in policy bound, summarily notified the youth that he had no further occasion for his servi-

Lord Lyndhurst completed his 86th year on the 21st of May. His lordship is in excellent health. The latter nobleman is consequently at the present moment the father of the House of Peers.—London paper.
